BOLD DAYLIGHT ROBBERY.

OGDEN, Nov. 28.—William M. French of Hot Springs, Ark., was the victim of a daring robbery in this city Saturday last. Stopping off in Ogden for train connections, Mr. French sauntered up Twenty-fifth street and entered a saloon near the depot where he purchased a drink. In paying for it, he displayed a wallet which he replaced in the inside pocket of his overcoat. There were a number of people in the saloon and among them was a negro. No sooner had Mr. French placed the wallet in his coat than the negro rushed up to him and thrusting his hand into the pocket, grabbed the wallet and darted through the back door. Several men in the saloon, realizing what had happened, started in hot pursuit and the negro was captured just outside the door; not, however, until he had thrown the wallet away. A hurried search for the money was begun and soon located. The police were at once notified and Detective Pender took the colored man to station, where he gave the name Roger Phillips, stating that he was from Pocahontas. Arrangements were made for Mr. French to remain in the city long enough to prefer a charge against the negro. The wallet, which the negro took, contained $25 in cash and a railroad ticket to Hot Springs, Ark.

TEMPERANCE MASS MEETING AT PROVO.

Large Assembly in Tabernacle Sunday Listen to Strong Prohibition Addresses.

(Special Correspondence.)

PROVO, Nov. 28.—A large temperance mass meeting was held Sunday at the stake tabernacle under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. D. D. Houts presiding.

Mrs. M. M. Boyden explained that in the last Sunday in November the W. C. T. U. held temperance meetings in all parts of the country.

Rev. J. Chaslen Smith spoke on "The Ethical Value of Prohibition." He made a very forceful talk, and read from a U. S. supreme court decision in which the right of a community to abolish the saloon was upheld. In speaking of local conditions, referring to the desire of some to have the prohibition ordinance repealed, became the general officers were elected on the anti-prohibition ticket, and the claim that they would not enforce the ordinance, he took the ground that such a charge was unjust to Mayor-elect Ray and the other officers whose general good character and their anti-election pledges to support the ordinance, should be a defense against the accusation that they would not enforce the ordinance.

Rev. Moore spoke on the strength of habit and the importance of forming correct habits, applying this to the temperance question.

Dr. George H. Brimhall made an eloquent address on the evils of intemperance and the duty of the citizens to safeguard their children against it. He told a story of a little boy, who had asked his father if it was wrong to go into a saloon. He was told that it certainly was. Then the boy said, "Well, isn't it wrong to keep a saloon?" The father said it was. "Then," said the boy, "why do you keep a saloon?" (The father was a member of a club which conducted a buffet.) Dr. Brimhall also defended the incoming city officers against the charge that they would not enforce the ordinance against liquor selling.

Beautiful vocal selections were rendered by the chorale of William Bassett, lately returned from England, rendered a solo.
